So managing your blood sugar with Nutrition Therapy is always better.

We at Bite&Diet help you to reduce your dosage of medicines or completely eliminate them. Which means you don't need to take medicines at all – Sounds chill! Yes but it's possible.

Nutrition therapy has multiple benefits. Apart from managing your diseases it helps to heal the underlying cause and other unhealthy symptoms you might be experiencing like high cholesterol & Blood Pressure, high uric acid etc. It helps you in losing weight and protect you from serious sideeffects of diabetes like hypoglycemia, neuropathy pain, kidney damage, blindness etc..

Dr.Madanlal who was diabetic since more than 10 years is a great motivation for all those who blood sugar is always higher. He has reduced his dose of insulin from 40 units to 15units.

Your normal fasting blood sugar should always range between 80-100mg/dl and post meal should not be more than 150mg/dl. But generally people with diabetes have higher blood sugar. This is a serious condition because higher blood sugar has negative impact on your body and they are damaging your organs.

When this condition arises we are generally recommended to take medicines to reduce blood sugar. But when our body stop responding to medicines we are recommended insulin .

But now we need to understand that managing these chronic conditions like Diabetes is a multidimensional approach. These cannot be treated or managed effectively without Diet and lifestyle modifications.

Your current lifestyle is what brought you here. Continuing to live the same way just means your condition is worsening every day and your dosage will need to increase to keep you safe.

This leads to loss of health and money both.

Dr.Madanlal joined Bite&Diet on May 2020. He was taking insulin. He also had complaint of high blood pressure & high proteinuria. His systolic blood pressure was always more than 180mmHg.
